SUMMARIZER

Your job is to write a summary of what happened in today's reading.

IN THE BEGINNING...

Read the first part or page. How can you tell us the most important thing that happens - using just one sentence? (This might describe a problem that the characters have, or it might describe what something or someone is like before being changed.)

Jack and Annie were on the moon hopping like moon rabbits.

MIDDLE...

Read the middle part or pages. How can you tell us the most important things that happen in just 1 - 3 sentences? Begin your sentences with words like Next, Then, or After that.

Jack was chasing after the moon book than he fell in a crater.

AT THE END...

Read the ending part or last page. How can you tell us the most important thing that happens at the end - using just one sentence? (This might describe the solution to the problem, or it might describe what something or someone is like after being changed.)

They got out of the crater than they zoomed across the moon in a moon buggy.

Character Profiler

1. Identify two characters from the pages that you have read.
2. Choose one character trait to describe each character. (Think about something a character does or says, and then ask yourself: What kind of person would do that or say that?)
3. Provide one piece of evidence from the reading (something the character does or says) that proves this character trait.

Name of Character: Annie	Evidence: Annie was enthusiastic when she rode the moon buggy.
Character Trait: enthusiastic

Name of Character: Jack	Evidence: Jack was nervous when he was in the moon buggy when Annie was driving
Character Trait: nervios

Connector Director

Your job is to find a connection between yourself and what you read. This connection could be as simple as you and a character sharing the same character trait. Give an example of a time when you did something that proves the same character trait in you!

For example: "Annie was brave when she stepped onto the moon just like I was brave when I rode my bike for the first time."

I was nervous when I went boggobarding for the first time. Just like Jack was nervous when Annie was driving the moon buggy without knowing how to drive.

Discussion Director

Your job is to come up with two questions that you can ask others who are in your group.

Do not ask questions that have only one right answer because then there won't need to be any discussion about it! Instead, ask questions that can have many answers, and that require your friends to do some thinking about what their opinion is. Write down your own answers before asking others. Here are some suggestions for how to start your questions:

- What do you think...
- Why was _____ important to the story?
- Can you compare...
- If you had been the author, how would you...
- How would the story have changed if...
- Predict what will happen if the...
- What do you think caused...
- Why did...
- Describe the character traits of...
- How did you feel when...

Discussion Question	Your own answer
1. What would you do if you were Jack in the Moon buggy with Annie?	1. I would hop out until I found out how to drive it.
2. How would you feel if you stepped on the moon?	2. I would feel nervous.

ART DIRECTOR

Your job is to draw a picture of a scene from the pages you read, or something that it reminds you of from your own life. (Use the back side of this paper.) Then answer these questions:

What did I draw a picture of? I drew a picture of Jack and Annie playing leapfrog on the moon and Jack is landing in a crater.

Why did I draw it? (How does this picture connect to the reading?) I drew my picture because with out Jack in that crater they would never of found the moonbuggy.
